V. Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement1. statement

Claims 2-6 YESClaims 1 NO

Inventive Step (IS)

Claims 2-6 YESClaims 1 NO

Industrial Applicability (IA)

Claims 1-6 YESClaims NONE NO2. citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

Claim 1 lacks novelty under PCT Article 33(2) as being anticipated by Xue et al.

The device of Xue et al clearly discloses all the structure recited in claim. Specifically, Xue et al discloses a microfabricated structure (glass microchip) having a integrated array of channels and electrodes (see figure 1).

Applicant's remarks are not well-taken because the applicant is relying on non-structural recitations in an apparatus claim for novelty. It is well-established that apparatus must distinguish over the prior art by structural recitations. For example, the applicant argues that the recitation "for gas transport" renders claim 1 novel. This is statement of intended use, e.g. it is not a structural limitation.

Claims 2-6 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(2)-(4), because the prior art does not teach or fairly suggest a microfabricated system comprising a fluid sample handling microdevice having multiple channels; and a electro-pneumatic distributor comprising a microfabricated structure having an integrated array of channels for gas transport and electrodes, said channels and electrodes being oriented to permit the simultaneous or sequential application of electric current and pressure to individual said channels of said sample handling microdevice. The prior art does not teach or suggest a system comprising either an electrospray interface having multiple electrospray tips or a deposition interface having multiple deposition tips; an electro-pneumatic distributor comprising a microfabricated structure having an integrated array of channels for gas transport and electrodes, said channels and electrodes being oriented for supplying pressure and electric current simultaneously to the individual deposition tips of either said electrospray interface or said deposition interface; and a gasket in between said interfaces and said electro-pneumatic distributor. The claimed devices would be useful for supplying sample to devices such as mass-spectrometers.
